About SHFF

Sagebrush Hills Film Festival (SHFF) is dedicated to presenting an array of relevant and engaging films to the Yakima Valley community. Our mission is to inspire meaningful dialogue and transcend cultural boundaries by bringing people together through the shared experience of film. In addition to the three-day festival held each fall, SHFF intends to grow the film culture in our community for both youth and adults with short, focused programs promoting global awareness and conversation throughout the year.

* SHFF operates under the fiscal sponsorship of the Yakima Valley Museum, a 501(c)3 non-profit.

Programs

Sagebrush Hills Film Festival:

Key components of SHFF's three-day fall festival include guest speakers, high-quality international feature films, thought-provoking short films, educational activities for families, and of course, a safe place to interact with others in the community to have discussions about global issues.

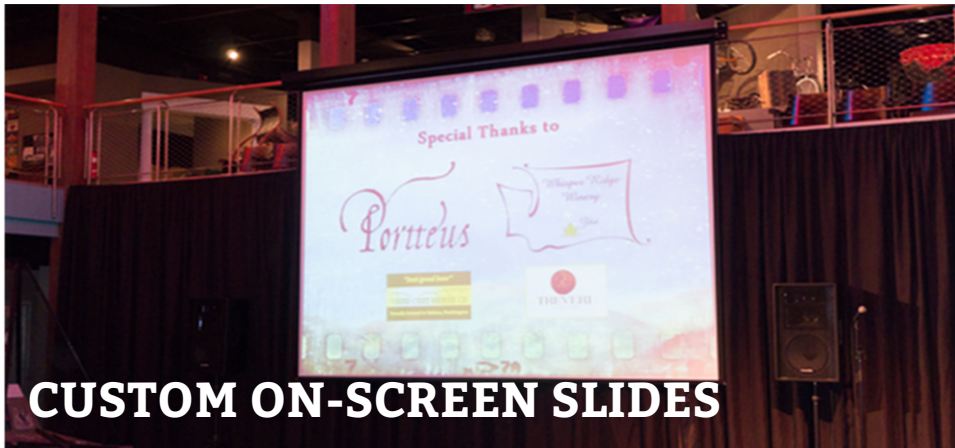

Sagebrush Hills Discover:

This one-day event designed specifically for families and youth is more than just entertaining movies - it's a place to explore what we have in common with people of different cultures. Sagebrush Hills Discover aims to expose our kids to new perspectives in order to help them embrace humanity and learn how to become better global citizens.

Brand Promotion Opportunities

Sagebrush Hills Film Festival is creating a new market of film enthusiasts who come together in order to understand one another and create a stronger community. Brands who share the values of experimentation, promoting global awareness and positive social change will find that partnering with SHFF will put your product directly in the hands of your target demographic.
